Why Not a Benefit for Clara Morris?—Agnes Booth-Schoeffel's Return—Clyde Fitch's Curlos-A New Play for Julia Mariewe.

It would be but an act of bright courtesy if a benefit were tendered to Clara Morris, the Dramatic Mirror suggests. If Miss Morris is in danger of losing her home at Morris is in danger of losing her home at Yonkers because of a $2,000 mortgage—the value of the place being $50,000—then some public-spirited manager should come to the rescue. This generation does not know the Clara Morris so beloved by theatregoers two decades ago, but the oldsters do remember, and gratefully, and a benefit would be sure to meet with a rousing re-

Miss Morris earns her living to-day by her pen. Any one who has toiled in the her pen. Any one who has tolled in the salty depths of this sort of existence will realize just how hard she must work. If Manager A. M. Palmer were about and in his feet the thing would soon be an accomplished fact. But he, unluckily, is confined to his house by illness.

The return of Agnes Booth-Schoeffel to he stage next season is really no return at all for she has never retired, except Mrs. Schoeffel will appear in "The Rest of Friends" at Mr Frohman's production in the Academy of Music, taking the part made famous by Mrs. John

The object of the new societywhich feared Albany and its dank political atmosphere, hence went to Jersey City for its charter-is to promote peace and good will among members of the theatrical profession. All cruelty, use of the knout, thongs, thugs, slugging or clubs are to be sternly discountenanced. Kind words for the "Willies" of the footlights and verbal bouquets for the Aramintas will be our ideal. Theatrical managers are cordially invited to join, as there is no hard feeling that will not be massaged away by the aid of advance notices. Frank Wilstach has been asked to assume the secretary-ship, but we greatly fear that his duties at the "Knockers' Club," in Thirty-sixth street West, will prevent him. It is perhaps a little premature to make the announcement, but the I. O. S. Vance Thompson sailed for Europe this morning on La Champagne, bearing with him orders for three new plays which he believes, with a kind of Clyde Fitchian obstinacy, he will finish by next fall.

They say that as he went up Broadway otherwise known as the Street of Unfulfilled Intentions-the other afternoon in company with Maestro Reginald de Koven, company with Macsiro Reginald de Koven, Herr Pete Dailey met the pair face to face and after gravely examining their respective monocles, he blithely remarked:
"Say, Reggie! Hi there, Van! Why don't you save breakage by having those things painted on, ribbons and al.? That's what I do in "The Stickiness of Gelatine." And he lost two stanch admirers forever.

The January Theatre is full of good things as usual. Mr. J. I. C. Clarke writes of "The Terrors of a First Night" and its agonies, its author's curtain speech and all the rest of the horrid events that occur at that time. As an old theatrical critic as well as playwright Mr. Clarke knows what he writes. What we are anxiously awaiting is a story on "A Critic's Première; or. Why His Copy Went Down Town Too Late for Publication." There is the other side of the medal for you! Let Mr. Clarks jog his excellent memory for "Things Seen." Justin Huntly McCarthy contributes a rongeau and there is an interesting article on deau and there is an interesting article on "Stage Fights," by Swordmaster F. G. Blakeslee. Mrs. Patrick Campbell is interviewed and pictures abound of Julia Mariowe and all the current plays and pictures.

Beerbohm Tree celebrated his fiftieth birthday with a supper at the Garrick Club the other day with covers laid for fifty of his old friends—one for every year. By that same token his old wet nurse should have been invited. However, if there were fifty toasts the affair was well wetted anylow.

"TOSCA" AT THE OPERA. Emma Eames Tries Once More to Be Tragic.

"If at first you don't succeed, try, try again." Mme. Eames did not succeed n the opinion of some people when she first undertook to impersonate Floria Tosca, the beautiful Roman singer who loved a painter of all fresco Madonnas. Of course, it is permissible to think anything you please about Mme. Earnes's opinion, but at least she had courage, either the courage of her convictions or the cour-age to try again when she did not succeed at first. Perhaps if she tries often enough the courage of her convictions or the courage to try again when she did not succeed at first. Perhaps if she tries often enough to be a tragedy queen she may succeed in becoming one, or at least in making us think that she has become one. It is not true that familiarity breeds contempt, at any rate in the opera house. Familiarity with poor performances at the Metropolitan brings with it a large and beautiful *p rit of endurance—or shall we say indifference? Mme. Eames's Tosca is beautiful. It is now more sparkling in the comedy of the first act. It is lyrically adorable at times. But it is never portentous. The indomitable soul of Floria Tosca never blazes from those hazy autumnal eyes. There is never the imperious gesture of pollice verso in those slim ivory arms. Death never lurks in that sculptured amile. This Tosca is too Doric, too cool, too shadowy in tint. "She walks in beauty like the night." She should fiame like the tropic noon.

But why go over this familiar ground again? Only because Mme. Eames, apparently inspired with a consciousness of he own rectifude, appeared as Tosca once again last night and demonstrated that Rome stood just where she did Again she sang with clear, celestial, passionless beauty of voice and style. Again she betrayed unfamiliarity with the elements of histrionic routine. Again she demonstrated that her temperament was not that of a tragedian. And again she was applauded vigorously by many important personages with insignificant memories.

TOSCA" ON SATURDAY NIGHT. The Opera to Be Given Was Kept a Secret for Business Reasons.

A secret so far jealously guarded was betrayed by the management of the Metro-politan Opera House last night, when the Saturday night opera was announced. It will be "Tosca," and Mmes. Eames and Bridewell and MM. de Marchi, Scotti, Gili-Bridewell and MM. de Marchi, Scotti, Gilibert and Dufriche will appear. Never before was a Saturday programme first announced on the previous Wednesday. It happened this week not from any uncertainty as to the opera to be sung but because "Tosca" was also given last night. To have announced the two performances simultaneously would have been bad for business. On Saturday, popular prices prevail.

CAN PROVIDE ENOUGH SCHOOLS. Supt. Sayder Says There Need Soon Be No Need for Part-Time Pupils.

The Executive Committee of the Board of Education will ask the Board of Estimate at its next election for $8,888,430 for the construction and equipment of school buildings in 1903. It will also ask that $3,500,000 of this amount be made available as soon as possible after Jan. 1.

The Superintendent of School Buildings reported that it is possible to have suffieient school room to accommodate all the children who apply so that there need be no part-time pupils within a few years. That condition of things could be brought about in two years were it not that some of the buildings have become unfit for use and must be abandoned.

PARTICULARLY IN REGARD TO THE AMERICAN PIE HABIT.

Vienna Surgeon Wonders How We Keep So Healthy—The Astonishing Little Boy He saw Who Ate Ple—And He Fears Our Women Are Too Strong.

Before Dr. Adolf Lorenz, the Vienna specialist in hip disease, went to his stateroom on the White Star liner Celtic early yesterday morning he talked modestly of his impressions of the country in which his fame has recently spread so widely. Of these impressions the most vivid was that of the Great American Pie Belt.

Both the physical and mental energy of your people are marvellous," said Dr. Lorenz, "and they are undoubtedly the chief cause of the wonderful growth and prosperity of your country. This energy ouzzles me not a little, when I consid the different kinds of foodstuffs habitually indulged in that are constitutionally destructive.

"The pies, puddings, sauces and innumerable other dishes, most of which are unhealthful in the extreme, partaken of by old and young alike at every meal, have caused me to wonder that the people are not physical and constitutional wrecks, instead of, as they are, the very opposite.

"Pastry, I have noticed in particular, seems to be a chief delight to the American palate, and nothing is more injurious. At dinner the other day a little fellow sat not far from my table. He had a very large piece of pie. I was informed by his parent that he indulged in pie twice every day; yet he looked to me the picture of health. I cannot quite understand it, and when I visit America again I shall make the matter of your food a special study."

American women, Dr. Lorenz sald, are as fine specimens of womanhood as there are in the world, but he also said they did not surpass the Austrian women, though American women in build are decidedly stronger than the Austrians.

"I think," said Dr. Lorenz, "they are a little too powerful for the men."

The Celtic carried a large number of passengers for this season of the year. There were 185 in the first cabin list. Among them were W. Bourke Cockran and John Dillon, the Irish M. P., who has been ill in Chicago. His wife, who came here to attend him, returned with her husband. by old and young alike at every meal,

There are fifty clubs in the association which was organized four years ago

AQUARIUM WILL HATCH FISH. Collecting Sea-Cucumbers, Sea-Squirts and Sea-Anemones.

Director Townsend of the Battery Aquarium announced yesterday that wor had begun on a fish hatchery to be made from a large tank near the main entrance. The top of this tank will bear heavy stone ledges and in these troughs will be cut for the flow of running water in which eggs of trout salmon and other such fish will be hatched. There will also be large jars of trout salmon and other such fish will be hatched. There will also be large jars for the hatching of eggs of still-water fish. The baby fish will be put in the tank as soon as they are able to shift for themslelves.

Mr. Townsend explained that this hatchery would be instructive as well as entertaining and had been planned in line with the scheme by which the Aquarium is to afford a workshop for public school students who may become interested in blology. In the time of Col. Jim Jones the Aquarium was mainly a fish aquarium. Mr. Townsend has taken steps to secure a very representative collection of the beautiful sea invertebrates. Barrels of sea-cucumbers, sea-squirts, sea-anemones, starfish and other crusty wonders have been ordered from places along the coast, funds for that purpose having become available. If any demand is made for these specimens they will be distributed to public school teachers for the instruction of the students.

Every Monday and every Thursday morning have already been set aside for the exclusive use of the Aquarium by public school students who may come there with their instructors. Plans are now being made to systematize this work fully.

MAJOR A. C. TATE DEAD. Complication of Troubles Carries Off

Brooklyn Water Registrar. Major Augustus C. Tate, Water Registrar in Brooklyn and one of the best-known war veterans in that borough, died at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning in his home at 404 Madison street from a complication of troubles, including a fatty degeneration of the heart, an abscess of the stomach and gangrene of the leg. On Sunday Dr. George Jeffry amputated the leg and it was supposed for a time that the operation might save the patient's life. Within twentyfour hours, however, evidences of gangrene reappeared and the case became hopeless. Dr. Jeffery said that the operation saved the patient from much suffering and a ingering death.

Major Tate was born in New York city 68 years ago. When the Civil War broke out he joined the Twelfth Regiment, New York Volunteers, and went to the front as color sergeant. Early in the war he became a Cap tain and subsequently Major in the 131st New York Volunteers, with which he served until the close of hostilities. He served in Gen. Molineux's brigade and under Sheridan in the valley of the Shenandoah.

At the close of the war Major Tate was

At the close of the war Major Tate was appointed to a place in the Custom House and in 1873 became aide to State Surveyor Alonzo B. Cornell. For six years he was United States Marshal for the Eastern District of New York, and on his removal during President Cleveland's first administration he became Marshal of the Court of Appeals in New York county, retaining the office until the abelishment of the court. He was appointed Water R gistrar of Brooklyn by Mayor Schieren and held the office almost continually until his death.

Major Tate was one of the organizers of the Grand Army in Brooklyn. He was commander of U. S. Grant Post at the time of his death. He was also prominent in Masonic circl s. He was a member of the Union League Club. He leaves a son and two daughters by his first wife, who died twenty-six years ago, and three sons and a daughter by his second wife, who survives him. At the close of the war Major Tate was

The Rev. Leverett Bradley, former associate rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. Luke and Epiphany in Philadelphia, died yesterday in that city of pneumonia. His health has not been good for some time and recently he resigned from St. Luke's Church. A few days ago he contracted a heavy cold, which developed into pneumonia. He is survived by a widow and three sons and a daughter—Leverett Bradley, Jr., Walker and Ralph, the two former graduates from Harvard University, and Margaret H. Bradley.

Nathaniel Martin, who died on Monday in his home at 224 McDonough street, Brooklyn, in his eighty-fifth year, was one of the pioneer shoe manufacturers in New York. He retired from business twenty-five years ago. He was a stalwart Republican and has voted regularly each year for his party candidates until the recent election, when he was unable to leave his home. He leaves a son and two daughters.

Ex-Recorder Patrick W. Connelly, a prominent resident of Bayonne, N. J. died yesterday at his home, Avenue C and Tenth street, at the age of 56. He served as a Justice of the Peace for a quarter of a century. He is survived by a widow and three children.
